Tell us briefly about yourself

I'm a seasoned IT Management Professional living in San Francisco. I love scenic landscapes in the desert and reading Howard Marks memos @oaktree

What is your overall approach to investing; what are your objectives, and what do you like about investing on your own behalf?

I think about minimizing risk and compound interest. I love the approach of mixing passive and active investments. Pay yourself first, don't give up!

How do you feel about real estate investing? What do you like about it, and how does it factor into your overall portfolio?

Real Estate investing is tangible and new to me. I think it's a great alternative to my active passive stock-heavy portfolio.

How do you feel about the various vehicles for real investing - direct ownership vs. passive investing through a platform (like EquityMultiple) vs. REITs?

They all have a place in one's portfolio. REIT's, albeit more conservative, are a great entry point to real estate. As you progress in interest and your personal wealth, a platform like EQUITYMULTIPLE is a great introduction to how to access and evaluate private deals; both debt and equity. I am learning so much just by participating and excited about how easy it is to lever an alternative investment via the EQUITYMULTIPLE portal.

Why do you invest with EquityMultiple?

Ease of use. Exposure to deals that I would not normally have and the pure excitement of something new. EQUITYMULTIPLE makes it easy and transparent for investors to find offerings that, in the past, might have only been word-of-mouth and/or siloed to traditional avenues such as pension or family office investors.
